<td>During the first quarter, students begin to access and discuss course-related content with peers, producing written reports and formal academic presentations. Students exhibit some confidence in carrying out face-to-face interactions and academic exchanges with same age, younger and older people, in culturally appropriate ways. Students grow in the ability to understand and interpret a variety of written and oral texts, using Spanish with greater frequency to manifest their understanding. Students present mainly on topics relating to the Spanish-speaking world, their academic interests and content area of focus, and exhibit growing confidence in oral and written presentation.</td>
<td>During the second quarter, students access information on course-related content and discuss this information with peers, in written reports, and in formal academic presentations. They exhibit greater confidence in carrying out face-to-face interactions and academic discussions with same age, younger and older people, in culturally appropriate ways. Students continue to grow in the ability to understand and interpret written and oral texts of increasing difficulty, and use Spanish to manifest their understanding. Students present on topics in the Spanish-speaking world as well as their academic interests and content area of focus, with evidence of greater cohesion in their oral and written presentation.</td>
<td>During the third quarter, students continue to access course-related content and to discuss this information with peers, in written reports, and in formal academic and professional presentations. They exhibit confidence in carrying out face-to-face interactions and academic or professional discussions with same age, younger and older people, in culturally appropriate ways. Students demonstrate the ability to understand and interpret a broad range of written and oral texts, and use Spanish to display their understanding. Students present on topics and issues in the Spanish-speaking world, their academic and professional interests, and their content area of focus.</td>
